HORSE CHESTNUT:

- Horse chestnut contains a compound called aescin, which has been found to produce an anti-inflammatory effect.
- Horse chestnut has been proven effective for people suffering from chronic venous insufficiency (CVI).
- Horse chestnut contains a substance that thins the blood. It also makes it harder for fluid to leak out of veins and capillaries and weakly promotes fluid loss through the urine to help prevent water retention .

BUTCHER'S BROOM:

- Butcher's broom is used to treat chronic venous insufficiency because it is thought to help stimulate circulation.
- Butcher's broom is rich in flavonoids, antioxidants that strengthen blood vessels and reduce the fragility of capillaries.
- The herb contains substances that appear to stimulate receptors in the body known as alpha-adrenergic receptors, which cause veins to constrict.
